

Reimbursement of Digital Health Solutions: Germany

Reimbursement of Digital Health is advancing in Germany:

- In February 2019 eight health tech associations (including three MTE member associations BVMed, Spectaris, and VDPH) called for better conditions for digital products and solutions to enter regular care and reimbursement.

Check here for more information on the paper (in German).

- In May 2019 the German Ministry of Health released a draft “digital care” law that, if enacted, will make certain digital health apps eligible for reimbursement through the German statutory health insurance: a welcome first step in the right direction.

Announcement (in German) of the draft law by the German Ministry of Health is here and a statement (in German) by the German Medical Device Association BVMed is here.